NARBERTH PLAYS PHIL- MONT TODAY

The courts of the Narberth Tennis Association have been put in the very best of condition for the big match between the Philmont Club and the home town aggregation, to be played Saturday afternoon, July 1. This promises to be the biggest match of the year and special preparations have been made to accommodate a large number of visitors. A big awning has been erected in front of the exhibition courts, where the matches can be witnessed in comfort.

The Narberth teams will consist of Harold Lane, Thorny Grugan, (Capt.), Bob Fretz, Bill Kilpatrick, Frank Fretz, Gene Allen, Walter Shaw and Charlie McKillips. There will be six matches of singles and three of doubles.

The membership drive started two weeks ago is to be extended until Saturday, July 8, since the quota of members has not yet been filled. During this time the courts will be open to all prospective senior members, who are invited to come up to the courts, lay and inspect the facilities of the association. This campaign for members will, however, close within one week, when the use of the courts will again be restricted to members only.

An interesting note in connection with the membership drive was sounded when Ned Muschamp, soliciting member, called on Roy Williams, erstwhile chorus girl and athlete. Without giving Roy a chance to say a word in self defense, Solicitor Muschamp started in like a patent medicine salesman. Roy's repeated attempts to interrupt were met with fresh outbursts of salesmanship, showing why he should put his name on the dotted line and become a member. After half an hour of the most rapid fire arguments, the solicitor felt that he had Roy where he simply couldn't refuse.

"Now, Mr. Williams," said he, striking a dramatic attitude, "don't you see that you should join our association?"

"Yes, yes," replied the subdued Roy.
"But I am now and have been a member for the past eight years."

DONATION DAY AT TENNIS CLUB

On Friday afternoon of last week the Women of the Tennis Auxiliary met at the Club House to donate various articles for the club's use. There was a generous response to the request for gifts. There were kitchen spoon-knives, forks, soap, tea towels, a screen, and other useful things, and enough turkish towels to keep the visiting teams dry enough to drink all the lemonade the Auxiliary can make.

WELL BABY CLINIC By Dr. Theodore Le Boutillier

It is impossible to overestimate the good which is done by a Well Baby Clinic. This is particularly true during the summer months when by the giving of milk mixtures suitable to the age and condition of the baby, as well as taking into consideration the weather changes, many cases of intestinal up-sets can be done away with.

If the mothers would realize what a saving in worry, time and expense a weekly visit to the Clinic means and how much better their babies are, the Clinic would be crowded each visiting day.

We have seen the infant mortality reduced surprisingly in the City by these means and the same results will be obtained from your Clinics.

Any child showing satisfactory progress with regular attendance during the summer months will be given a certificate.

Following are the Clinics under the Main Line Branch No. 1, American Red Cross:

Ardmore—Monday and Thursdays, 2
P. M.

Conestoga Community Center—Tuesdays and Fridays, 2 P. M.

Preston Reading Room—Wednesdays,
2 P. M.

West Manayunk—New clinic opened Wednesday July 19th, 2 P. M. Held each Wednesday thereafter.

A WINNING ESSAY

The essay printed below won the Colonial Daughters Medal in the recent Narberth High School competition. The letter from the Society to Mr. Wilson is of interest.

National Society
COLONIAL DAUGHTERS
Mrs. Harley Calgin Gage, President

4 duPont Circle, Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Wilson:

The essay which won the medal offered by our Society in your School, has been duly received and read with great interest.

This is one of the finest essays sent in to us this year, and congratulations are due, not only to the writer, but also to the School where the mental discipline and training are of such high standard as to produce so fine a piece of work. On behalf of our entire membership, I congratulate both the writer of the essay and your English Department most cordially.

We hope you will make this contest a patriotic essay-writing annual event in your School, and I hereby formally invite you to compete for one of our medals next year.

Very sincerely yours, (Signed) MARY E. GAGE, President.

The Conference at Washington

The Great War, the greatest of all times, a war in which the entire world took part, is over and peace is declared.
But the horrible memories of the war or of any war, are not obliterated by the signing of the peace treaty; and the last war seemed to serve as a reminder of the horrors and suffering of war and to make it loom a great dark cloud in the future. The nations of the world came together to put down a great evil, and victory was due to their combined efforts. When victory was assured and peace declared, there was a united desire that the peace should last.

Remembering this desire, President Harding called a Conference at Washington, where met those nations of the world chiefly concerned in military and naval competition, the Treaty of Versailles failing to provide for world disarmament. The war had increased the navies of Great Britain, United States and Japan, making them rivals on the seas. Something was necessary to stop this rivalry and these nations came to the Washington Conference with the intention of finding that something.

The handling of American interests was given to the Department of State, whose Chief is Secretary Hughes. Secretary Hughes started the Conference by announcing a program of ratios for the reduction of the navies of Great Britain, United States and Japan. The ratios were 6-5-3, which were to drop to 5-5-3 in the future. This means that Great Britain and the United States will have the same tonnage for war ships, and Japan will have sixty per cent. of those.

Meanwhile, France and Italy wished to join in the ratios. Mr. Hughes had not thought of inviting these two nations to join because they were not rivals of the three great sea powers, but he willingly accepted and included them in the ratios, which stood when completed, 5-5-3-1.75-1.75 respectively.

The question of the submarine also needed settlement. A submarine tonnage of 900,000 tons for Great Britain and the United States, with a small tonnage for Japan, Italy and France was suggested. France and Great Bri-ain immediately protested. France said that the submarine defended the weak nations. She seemed to want to settle up her disagreements with England before she would give up the submarine.

England resented this. Her experience with submarines in the great war prompted her to fight for a ban on submarines. But it seemed impossible to come to an agreement on the submarine question, so, International Law regarding the submarine, that Germany willfully disobeyed, was brought to the attention of the nations. Also they promised not to extend fortifications against each other. The first step toward disarmament had been taken and it had succeeded.

The second question to be settled was the Anglo-Japanese Alliance. This Alliance was formed by the two nations, Great Britain and Japan, in 1902 to help one another against Russia.
They had both regarded Russia as a danger. She was looked upon in the East as Germany later was in the West.
However, when Russia was defeated in the Russo-Japanese War, she turned to Europe as her center of attention and consequently became friendly with England.

Later when Germany began to make herself an apparent danger to Britain, the latter was compelled to bring her ships from the East to the West for protection. When she took them Japan promised to protect Britain's Eastern interests. There again the Alliance served a purpose.

But the Alliance was looked upon by the United States as a check on

INTERESTING SPEAKER FOR FRIENDS' MEETING

On Sunday, July 9th, at 11 A. M., at Merion Friends' Meeting House, Mr.
Haridas Mazumdar, of Bombay, India, will deliver an address on the "Spiritual Significance of the Non-Violent Revolution led by Mahatma Gandhi."

Mr. Mazumdar is a young man of keen intelligence and is studying Social conditions and Economics. He speaks English quite fluently, although only two years in this country; he is a friend of Gandhi and was on the Committee who welcomed Gandhi on his return from South Africa.

It should be a pleasure and an inspiration to listen to one who is in a position to know about conditions in Far Off India. All welcome.

BORROWING A LEMON

Last Wednesday afternoon I wanted a lemon to serve with some fish. Why did I have fish for dinner on Wednesday? That was nothing to do with the story. Well, I you-hoed to Mrs.
Whatsername, and asked if she could lend me a lemon. (I had discovered that my last one had "squeezed out" through some loop-hole). No, she could not, she had just squeezed the only one into the iced tea. So I tried Mrs.
Whosis—no lemons! Then my young son announced that he was going down the street to play. So I said, "Ask Mrs. Rigamajig if she can lend me a lemon." Just as he reached her door, he heard her say, "Now, dearie, stay here while I run over and borrow a lemon from Mrs. Thingamebob." No hope! By that time I felt that I simply could not eat that fish without lemon juice. In despair I phoned to my intimate friend, Mrs. Whatyoucallem. Her husband answered the 'phone and said he knew she would be willing to give him away. I didn't like to tell him that two kinds of fish do not mix, so I said I was afraid he would not be good on fish. Well, finally he called the message to his wife, and she found a little old lemon rather hard and dry, but still lemony. Yes, the fish was very good, thank you, but after this I'll remember that the stores are closed on Wednesday afternoons.

LUNCH FOR TENNIS PLAYERS

On the Fourth the Women of the Auxiliary will serve a lunch similar to the cafeteria supper held on Memorial Day. There will be more of those pedigreed "dogs" that everyone enjoyed so much, fresh sandwiches, and lots of coffee and ice cream, of course.
If enough players care to stay they may serve the same menu for supper.
Owing to the Boy Scouts' celebration, there will be no entertainment in the evening.

Mrs. Robert F. Wood, of Forbes Ave., is spending the month of July at her former home at Marblehead, Mass.

PORCH PARTY

Mrs. H. A. Jacobs gave a porch party on Thursday, in honor of Mrs. William Russell, a former resident of Narberth. A delicious picnic luncheon was served on the porch. Judging from the laughter that peeled forth, everybody had a jolly time. In view of the fact that all the guests were getting ready for vacation, all voted to sew, knit and embroider, instead of playing cards. The guests were Mrs. Wm. Russell, Mrs. E. C. Batchelor, Mrs. A. B. Ross, Mrs. Wm. Livingston, Mrs. J. F. Donnelly, Mrs. H. R. Hillegas, Mrs. C. P. Fowler, Mrs. J. S. Harris.

BISHOP—HANSELL

Mrs. C. W. Hansell, of 52 Montgomery Avenue, Narberth, Pa., announces the marriage of her daughter, Florence Evelyn to Mr. Robert Bishop on Wednesday, July 20th. Mr. Bishop is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bishop, of Bryn Mawr. After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop will be at home at "Hope Cottage," Cayuga Island, La Salle, New York.

SONG BIRDS ON THE WING Narberth Girls to Make Concert Tour Through Canada

Miss Augusta Witherow, of Grove Place, and Miss Emily Sibley, of Haverford Ave., with Miss Winifred Wiley, formerly of Narberth, will form the three members of a Company which will tour through New England and Canada, rendering concerts under management of the Chataqua. Miss Emily Sibley will act as accompanist to the two singers, Miss Augusta Witherow whose wonderful soprano is well known to music-lovers of Narberth, and Miss Wiley, who has a remarkable contralto. They will leave the latter part of August to open in Massachusetts on the 21st, from where they will travel up into Canada. Miss Witherow has recently made her 48th public concert appearance since January, and Miss Wiley had the title roll in the last performance of "Carmen" with the Philadelphia Operatic Society at the Academy of Music.

Mrs. H. A. Jacobs has as her guests Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Mitchell, of Richmond, Va.

THE TOWER OF BABBLE

By Collum Righter

WOOD VOICES

Humorous Sir:
I am enclosing a copy of our recommended list of Books for Summer Reading. Hoping it may inspire your whimsical soul to friendly wit at our expense.

Most cordially,
Elizabeth K. Wood (Librarian) Narberth Community Library.

The above brief, while duly appreciated, is none the less astounding. The fact that esteemed Mrs. Wood has seen fit to halt her busy day long enough to term us "humorous," to put us in our proper niche by possessing us with a "whimsical soul," to gently accuse us of having the ability to dispense "friendly wit," sets us to gasping like a stranded gold fish—leaves us nearly drowning in our own tears of joy and gratitude. Such an unsolicited and unexpected recognition of merit such a keen perception of the nature of the goal toward which we are working would be uncanny were it from the pen of any other one save our Hon. Librarian.

To be discovered by a woman! Pardon! Our magnetic powers are nothing short of "marvellous"—but none the less dangerous—to us, that is. Once before in our mundane meanderings did one of the Fair Sex discover us—and the perfect dear deliberately married us. It is strange, but true, in order to convince a wife (personal or otherwise) that one cannot get along with her, one's first move is to swear by the Seven Gods that one cannot get along without her.

We praise the sweet feminine Bible-ophile of Narberth in sixteen different languages, among which are included the Democratic lingo of the South Side and the dulcet Elizabethan tonations of the "Forrest" path.

In passing her Library Door we pause for a moment to raise a hat in solemn, heartfelt tribute to esteemed Mrs. Wood, who by her untiring effort, her unfathomable and wisely critical mind, her ever pleasing manner, her winning smile, her judicious choice of Librarians and Assistants par excellence, her calm, collected Captaincy, her ready recognition of what is necessary to be done and her capacity for doing it, has builded about a nucleus of virtually nothing, an institution which has already become one of the most valuable and constructive assets of our town, The Narberth Community Library.

Mrs. Woods's communication recalled to our memory the quiet, restful influence that gathered us unto its bosom when once we stood 'neath the shelter shade of a dignified oak king, guarding the edge of a daisy starred, green-waving meadow and there while myriads of leaves whispered in the soft summer breath that stirred gently through the limbs overhead, we watched wonder-bound, the beauty of a smooth-flowing, silvery brook purling its way over mossy stones, past green-rushed banks, to lose itself to view peacefully and mysteriously under the ivy clad arches of an ancient stone bridge far off yonder.

Pence, restfulness, the quietude of friendly dignity, the spell of calm well wishing, these are so rare to us. But we found a moment of them all in Elizabeth's letter. By that same token have we found the gentle Librarian an inexhaustible subject. And her wares! her books! Ah, her books, they are equally so. Come stealthily with us, Column Readers. Creep softly, softly up the half closed door. Behold her there at her little table, after all have gone. Alone? No, never so when surrounded by such friends as these—her books. Hark! Now is she speaking to them. Listen:

Walls lined with books!
Yon heavy laden shelves Radiate thoughts from author's inmost selves, Opening realms of mystic mystery If I but try through their thin veils to see.
Pearls of the East, of Southland's sunny clime

Gems of all sorts in stately prose and rhyme Wait on my bidding.
And I ever know these jewels are mine.
Their spirits tell me so Pride of possessing wondrous wealth like this No sordid critic e'er can think amiss.
I find through carefully searching looks Portions of Immortality in books.
Resources 'gainst the heaviness of Time, Pathways that lead to acts and words sublime, All these, and more, are free to him Who delves painstakingly Among the precious shelves.

By George, we nearly forgot about it. Flies and Library books do not mix well. One cannot enjoy the companionship of the latter while being pestered by the former. And as to cataloging, why indeed it is nothing short of impossible for a fair Catalogues to turn out a good job with flies walking about upon her alabaster forearm. So something must be done. And the Column has been appointed and designated to do it by a certain one of the alabaster-forearmed assistant Librarians of our esteemed Community Library. We proceed on our quest as follows.

Bas bleu Elizabeth K., the Librarian-in-Chief, is naturally bashful and retiring (of which virtues everyone is fully aware.) She knows her Library door needs screening, and needs it badly. She also knows that either one of our Hon. Hardware Merchants would be only too anxious to provide the screen door, should she but ask for it. She knows it must be done though, without thought of remuneration. And now, now the Hdw. Merchts. are aware of that fact also. Yes, Messrs Hardware Magnates, the Library door fly excluder must be a gift pure and simple. But a gift that will forever and a day sound with its spring hinges the praises of the Civic Pride of a Bergner—or shall it be a Ricklin? Perhaps it may be both. But anyway we feel that esteemed Elizabeth K.'s Library door shall be soon properly screened.

You are entirely welcome, Elizabeth. Pray say no more about it. Is there anything else?

PORTLAND CEMENT

SOMETIMES a porch is the one thing needed to add that cozy look every home should have. If so, the three things to consider are expense, appearance and permanence.

Three men in your community will gladly answer these three questions—the contractor, the architect and the building material dealer. In fact the dealer will help you deal with the other two. Your building material dealer can give you useful information and advice. On building materials it is safe to follow his judgment. He will recommend Atlas Portland Cement, "the Standard by which all other makes are measured."

More Gas Saving Hints

Give thought to the selection of proper cooking utensils.

Flat bottom utensils with a base broader than the gas flame are fuel savers.

Remember, that a long, yellow, smoky flame is wasteful and a small, blue flame is hotter and requires less gas.

Flame tips on range and water heater burners should be about one-half to three-quarters of an inch long.

"When to Buy?" Right Now

Now is the time to have a Gas Water Heater installed in your home. The prices are already low, in view of manufacturing conditions, and are not likely to go lower.

A Gas Water Heater, very economical to operate, will help you to save on living costs and solve the fuel problem. Installed on easy term payments if desired.

the progress of disarmament. She also felt that it would be a test of British friendship and the United States fought hard to eliminate it.

Great Britain wanted as far as possible to please America. She wanted the Alliance eliminated if it could be done in such a way as would not hurt the feelings of Japan. Japan was willing to eliminate it if there would be a substituting Alliance. She had attained a first class position in the family of nations and she did not wish again to be left alone in the Far East, without prestige.

Britain came forward with a Three Power Alliance. The nations realized that this was a remedy. The President and Mr. Hughes saw that the purpose of the Conference would be defeated if the old Alliance was not eliminated, and so they were in favor of the substitute treaty. France again wished to join and she was included in the treaty, making it a Four Power Treaty.

The Alliance agreed upon specified that these nations, United States, Great Britain, Japan and France, are to confer in case of disagreement on any Pacific question; disagreements between contracting parties are to be brought before a conference of all four; and disagreements with other nations are to be treated in like manner. Also, these four nations are to recognize each other's possessional rights. In other words, they all promise to behave themselves and to stay out of each other's affairs.

The Treaty pleased everyone concerned. Britain can strengthen friendship with the United States and can do it in such a manner that will not hurt Japan's feelings; Japan has obtained even more prominence than she had dared hope for; France gains prestige, and the United States has accomplished the elimination of the old treaty and has advanced another step toward her ideal, World Peace.

The third problem of the Conference was the Chinese question, and it was a very difficult one. The Chinese policies of United States and Japan differ widely. The United States upholds the Open Door Policy. She regards it in much the same light as the Monroe Doctrine. The Monroe Doctrine excludes the Eastern Hemisphere from the Americans, just as the Open Door Policy excludes other nations from China.

On the other hand, Japan wishes to invade China and extend her control there as far as possible. She has succeeded in doing this to a large extent and America strongly opposes it. Such, then, is the cause of the difference in policies and a clash seems inevitable.

United States largely excludes the immigration of the Yellow Race. This action Japan resents and helps to make her regard American policy as a direct and even deliberate menace to its own very existence. Europe also was inclined to look upon the matter in the same way. But that is not America's purpose. She is only taking China's part and championing her cause, just as she championed the different causes of the South American Republics under the authority of the Monroe Doctrine. Truly, she is trying to oust Japan from China and when that is accomplished to keep her out, but she is only doing it so that China may prosper and become a fine nation respected by the world.

As conditions stand at present in China, she cannot, as a nation, be depended upon. She is struggling with a civil war which Japan has encouraged. The latter controls a large portion of Manchuria and Vladivostok, and she need only continue her actions and she could spread her control indefinitely. It is against this policy of national aggrandizement at the expense of China that the United States is fighting.

But Japan is not the only nation that holds land in China. Britain owns Hong Kong and Wei-wei-wei; France holds a naval base in the south and Portugal holds a portion of Macao; but we do not intend to tell them to leave. On the other hand, Japan controls lands which were formerly Chinese. She holds Korea and Port Arthur Peninsula and the Island of Formosa. In holding these former Chinese territories, she is unquestionably invading China.

She also owns Shantung, but she declares that question was settled by the Treaty of Versailles, though it was not settled to America's liking.

After lengthy discussions a settlement was finally accomplished. After persuading Japan to understand that the Shantung question was not settled by the Versailles Treaty, she promised to leave Shantung and to remove her troops within six months. This was a great accomplishment; Shantung was thus restored to China. It is rather surprising that Japan would do this for she was so very firm on the question.

On the Manchurian subject, Japan would not move. Great Britain, however, has promised to leave Wei-wei-wei, and France to leave Kwang-chow-wan.

As for Siberia, no settlement was reached. Japan has promised to leave in the future and United States is taking her at her word. If she fails to leave war will undoubtedly result.

United States will never allow a weak, helpless nation to be trampled upon by powerful but unscrupulous nations.

The World's History does not record such unselfishness shown by any nation as was shown by United States in this conference. She sacrificed most for Disarmament and did it for the good of the world. Her labor to right the injustice in China shows the unselfishness of the United States and that when she herself obtains prosperity she cannot enjoy it if she is not helping some other nation, who needs the help, to that height of the ladder. We should indeed be proud that it was our President who called the Conference, our statesmen who suggested and carried out, with the help of foreign statesmen, those high ideals, and our Capital where this great Conference met.

The United States has taken another step. "To make the world safe for Democracy" and the sun is beginning to shine through the dark clouds of the future.

MARION MILLER.

THE GRAY PUSSY CAT.

There is welcome for every one at the Narberth Community Library. Even the Little Gray Pussy Cat knows that, for she came in on Friday afternoon with the utmost confidence, hesitating when within doors only long enough to wonder on which side she belonged. It looked so attractive over there in the children's alcove, with the friendly little woman at the desk, but what did she see on the shelves? "Buff, a Collic," and "Lad, a Dog." Oh, no! not there! Surely then on the other side, back of that long line of tables where every one seemed so busy, for there was a fireplace, and could it be true? "Plum Pudding!"

Could she have "Plum Pudding?" It was asked oh, so very timidly that the kind lady who sits at the distributing desk was grieved to refuse her and hastened to add that kitty might stay there a while if she would confine her attention to defending from vile nibblers (thus paraphrasing Anatole France) those books which have been acquired at the cost of so slender savings and such indefatigable zeal. This pedantic remark led to a discussion of Anatole France and that masterpiece of his, "The Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard."

"What was his crime?" asked the kitten.

It was no crime at all, she learned, except in the very tender conscience of an exceedingly sensitive man—dear old Sylvestre Bonnard, who for fifty years remained true to the memory of the girl he could not win. "It is a charming story," the lady continued, "full of the beauty of human emotions, emotions always noble and pure, and in such stories Anatole France stands alone. It is for this that he has recently won the Noble Literature Prize."

"And may anyone take this book from the library," asked the kitten. "Anyone," said the Distributing Lady, "at least any man or woman!" "Oh," said the kitten, and she turned to her task of defending the books from the vile nibblers.
